ABSTRACT

A communications system in a user queries a first database
5   regarding a registered user identifier and uses the response of the first database to query a second database to access a data set regarding the registered user. The system may also comprise a third server comprising hierarchical data that defines a relationship between a plurality of data sets 10   regarding the registered user, enabling the user to access a selected data set.

Figure 1.

15